Jesus in Beijing is an amazing story of how Christ is building His Church in China. The author, David Aikman, is not a missionary, as perhaps one might initially suppose, but rather a journalist. Missionaries have been banned from China for quite some time, in fact since 1949. So we don't have missionaries to keep us informed about China.

The Chinese Church not only envisions-- and is working toward-- bringing all of China to faith in Jesus Christ, but is also working toward bringing the whole Muslim world to Christ. The Chinese believe they are better able to do this than the western Church, and that it is their turn to spread the Gospel, just as it has been the west's turn to do so for the last few centuries.
